

The Honorable (Mention),

Our dad's death was a deeply traumatizing event, and still weighs like iron in our minds and hearts. Our sources indicate that Jessica Rae Charity knew these dogs were violent and dangerous, knew they had attacked others before, and was proud of the violent nature of her dogs. We feel the crime of criminally negligent homicide adequately describes her contribution to this horrific and medieval death. While it pains us to inflict any more suffering, Jessica is responsible for the death of our dad, and we wish to set a precedent - you cannot endanger other people's lives just because you want to, and not suffer the consequences. Our dad suffered far worse than Jessica's punishment will be, and we feel it is just.